AGED MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN BLAZE WHICH DESTROYS HIS HOME AT CROYDON; WIFE NARROWLY ESCAPES

John Denny, Sr., 67, Trapped in Kitchen, But His Wife is Able to Make Way to Safety—Blaze Believed Due to Oil Stove—Flames Quickly Spread

CROYDON, Nov. 3.—Too feeble to escape flames which enveloped his tiny home yesterday morning, John Denny, Sr., aged 67, burned to death as he was trapped in the kitchen.

His wife, who had also been in ill health, managed to get into the open, and was not touched by the flames which prevented neighbors from reaching the trapped man.

The fire, believed due to an oil stove in the kitchen of the one-story frame dwelling, located on Main street, quickly ate its way to all parts of the three-room structure. It was at 9:55 that the blaze from the stove suddenly shot in every direction, that relatives and friends look upon it as miraculous that Mrs. Denny was able to save herself. Her husband, more tottering in his step, readily fell a victim to the flames. Both were thought to have been in the kitchen at the time.

In a small house on the same plot of ground reside Mr. and Mrs. John Denny, Jr., and seeing the blaze, Mrs. Denny, Jr., called to Timothy Coyne who happened to be on the opposite side of the street. Hurrying to her aid, Mr. Coyne broke a window pane and attempted to gain entrance to rescue the aged man, but was prevented by the dense smoke and flames which poured from the building. Mr. Coyne's eyebrows were singed and his hand burned. Another neighbor, William Pendergast, also tried to force his way in, but to no avail, and his arm, too, was somewhat burned. A futile attempt to enter was also made by Miss Dorothy Wunsch, 19, a neighbor.

Croydon Fire Company members arrived in record time with their apparatus, and although unable to enter to save the man, hurriedly extinguished the flames. When the body of Mr. Denny was recovered, it was unrecognizable. The body was removed to the funeral home of George Molden, Bristol.

Bucks County Rescue Squad, also summoned, rushed to the scene with an ambulance. The members took Mrs. Joseph Gross, daughter of the Dennys, to squad headquarters for treatment after she fainted at the scene of the fire.

Mrs. Denny was taken immediately to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Gross, here. In addition to his wife, Mr. Denny is survived by two daughters and two sons, Mrs. Gross, Mrs. James Curry, Fred and John Denny, Jr., all of Croydon; also seven grandchildren.

Dr. Charles F. Sampsel, Bristol, deputy coroner of Bucks county, was summoned to view the body.

Search for Dynamite

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—Police today were searching desperately throughout the Kensington section of Philadelphia for chunks of dynamite—between 40 and 50 sticks—found by six Philadelphia boys who scattered it around unaware of its deadly power. Authorities said the boys found the dynamite in a quarry shanty on Red Lion Road, between Frankford avenue and Roosevelt Boulevard, just in Bucks County.

South Langhorne state police were investigating the case. Detectives of the bomb squad, led by Lt. Albert Granitz, believed they had recovered most of the explosive this afternoon, but the search was continued.

No action against the boys was planned immediately. The youngsters banged each other over the head with the sticks, pretending they were blackjacks, and even tossed a couple of chunks on a bonfire, but nothing happened.

Eight Airmen Safe

San Francisco, Nov. 3.—Eight army airmen from a B-17 bomber which crashed apart while bucking a storm over the High Sierra were reported safe today, leaving two army pilots dead, four missing and four planes wrecked as the result of a heavy storm in Northern California.

Forest Supervisor Edwin F. Smith telephoned authorities at Placerville, Cal., that he understood six men from the bomber were located at a cattle camp some 26 miles west of Lake Tahoe. One of them, Private Harold Salisbury of Bangor, Me., was injured, according to the report.

Luftwaffe Strikes at Soviet Caucasus

Berlin, Nov. 3.—While German armies swept across the Crimea, German authorities declared the Nazi Luftwaffe struck its first blows today at the rich oil-producing Soviet Caucasus.

Reaping the fruits of the Crimean advance, officials said, German bombers roared across the Black Sea and heavily bombed Novorossiisk at the foot of the Caucasian Mountains.

As the Luftwaffe once more struck deep into Russian territory from bases close behind the advancing armies, the high command announced smashing blows at Sevastopol and Kerch in the Crimea and capture of the important industrial and railway town of Kursk, 390 miles south of Moscow.

TOMORROW'S ELECTION

Tomorrow's election is generally referred to as an "off-year" election. To most people this means the election is of little importance, that it is hardly worth a trip to the polls. Nothing could be more untrue.

This is an off-year election—for no national offices and only two State judgeships will appear on the ballot. But that gives the voters an unusual chance to concentrate on obtaining the kind of local government they want.

In these times everyone's thoughts are naturally turned to the national and international scenes. This is natural because there exists now a foreign situation and a domestic crisis of historic proportions. But, nevertheless, the people of Bucks County are still living in communities in this County—and the management of local civic affairs still is the most dominant factor in their everyday lives.

Since the voters can express no opinion on foreign or national policies at the polls tomorrow, it means they need to think only of the local candidates and what they stand for. It is a chance, a rare chance, to vote for the government you want right here where you live—with no other factors to complicate your choice.

Voting the straight Republican ticket tomorrow means

Motorcycle Enthusiasts Are Wed in Motoring Costumes

CROYDON, Nov. 3.—What was planned to be a motorcycle wedding, was changed by Jupiter Pluvius on Saturday afternoon—the marriage of a Bristol member of Frankford Motorcycle Club to an Elkins Park young woman taking place in the home of the groom's brother-in-law and sister here.

In spite of the necessary change in plans, the bride, Mrs. Mabel Whittall, of Elkins Park, and the groom, Mr. Harry Cahoon, 618 Pine street, Bristol, wore their motoring costumes, as they took their vows before Justice of the Peace Edward Lynn of Bristol, in the living room of the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Deal, Maynes Lane, at four o'clock.

Only two other members of the motorcycle club arrived for the ceremony, these being accompanied by their girl friends. Providing weather had been clear, 40 member had planned to arrange their motorized vehicles "V" shaped on the lawn.

Among the first to greet the bride following the brief ceremony were the three little daughters of the groom, Peggy, 3; Audrey, 5; and Dianne, 7, the youngest saying "Hello, Mother." The bride's two-year-old son, Ronald, was not at the ceremony, he being at the home of a relative.

This, the second ceremony for each of the contracting parties, was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends of each.

The bride wore a white motoring costume, the blouse being of satin with piping of black; and her breeches being of whipcord. She wore black riding boots. Her long blond hair was uncovered.

The groom's attire was a black motoring outfit with trim of white.

Attending the couple were Miss Florence Kahoe, West Oak Lane; and Mr. Albert Foster, West Bristol. Miss Kahoe wore a black and red motoring costume; and Mr. Foster, one of black and white.

The weather was so inclement that the bride and groom did not ride from Elkins Park to the scene of the ceremony on a motorcycle as planned; although they did leave yesterday for a few days honeymoon trip to Virginia by cycle.

A reception took place in Croydon Fire Company station on Saturday evening. The newlyweds will reside with the groom's father, R. W. Cahoon, at 618 Pine street, Bristol.

That there is a great difference in the forms of government currently enjoyed by the "democracies" is emphasized in price ceiling procedure in the United States and in Canada.

Congress in Washington is drafting its limitations with the utmost caution. The measure is still in committee and is far from complete. Many Congressmen are opposed to any form of price-fixing as a totalitarian move.

In Canada the prime minister has announced a ceiling for virtually everything effective November 15. Wages will be frozen but modified somewhat by making compulsory a cost of living bonus adjustable every three months. All goods, except sales for export, are to be put under control in Canada. The ceiling will apply to rents, rates for electricity, gas, steam, heat, water, telegraph, telephone, the transportation of goods and persons, warehousing and storage, meals, refreshments, beverages, painting, decorating, undertaking, laundering, cleaning, tailoring, dressmaking, plumbing and hair dressing.

WEATHER VAGARY

It's been an unusual fall in the northeastern part of the United States, with balmy weather that made heat in buildings all but unnecessary in most sections and with a lack of rainfall that resulted in drying up of streams and in reducing rivers to a trickle. Weather bureau records fail to disclose a similar autumn in the Northeast.

But the weather idyll has come to an end, as most folk were convinced it would, and a cold wave preceded by rain has put an end to the drought and the uninterrupted sunshine. Winter, according to the signs, is being readied for its annual descent upon the northern two-thirds of the nation.

With the thermometer recording fifteen degrees of frost at Winnipeg and setting marks almost as low in the Northwestern United States with Rocky Mountain passes closed by snow and a 16-inch snowfall recorded in Colorado, it is perhaps just as well that none of the amateur weather forecasters succumbed to the temptation to predict that this would be a year without a winter.

Joe Louis, on the eve of induction into Uncle Sam's armed forces, looks back upon four years as champion. Joe is now 27 and apparently will remain champion until Father Time gets in his work.

A suggestion that the $2 bill is revived has been tossed into the current discussion of prices. The argument is that it would buy a dollar's worth of merchandise.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Jan. 15, 1880. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Last Saturday afternoon a man and one on Washington street between named William Watson was killed near Landeston by the United express, which passes here about four o'clock. The accident happened in this wise: Watson and a companion were on the road to Philadelphia from New York, and were walking on the east bound track when a freight train came along and they moved over to the other track, the express train coming up behind them unnoticed. Watson's companion discovered the train when it was within a few feet of them, and calling to Watson made a jump, trying to pull the latter off the track, but not succeeding the train struck him, killing him instantly.

Some fire-crackers and paper were on Wednesday night of last week, placed under the A. M. E. Church, on Pond street, and set on fire. Frank Sanderson, passing by, saw the flames and, with the assistance of some of the neighbors, extinguished them.

The river still remains open, and the Columbia seems determined to keep on the route all winter.

At the regular meeting of Council last Monday evening, all the members were present. The minutes were read and approved. The street committee recommended the placing of a lamp at the corner of Penn and Pond streets. J. K. Wildman, Samuel Swain, A. W.

Gilkeson, Mrs. William Rogers, C. E. Scheide, Miss A. Merrim, Harold Peirce, Mrs. James M. Slack, and Jesse O. Thomas.

Moon's hall at Morrisville was crowded last Saturday evening, and many were unable to gain admittance. Mrs. Jarley's wax works took the place of the debate at the lyceum, and was in every respect a success. Miss Addie Boileau well sustained the part of Mrs. Jarley.

A surprise party of an unusual kind occurred in the third ward last Saturday evening. The pupils of Miss Hattie Bailey's night school called upon her and she wonderingly admitted them into the house, not knowing whether a meeting of some kind was not brewing. She was not long kept in suspense, however, and found there indeed was conspiracy, which ended in her becoming the recipient of a silver napkin ring, a butter dish, and half a dozen napkin rings, which her visitors presented her with as a testimony of the appreciation of her kindness and faithfulness.

EDGELY

The pupils of Edgely School enjoyed a Hallowe'en party in each of their rooms on Friday afternoon. Prizes were awarded for costumes, and refreshments were served.

Mrs. James Jones entertained a few guests on Thursday evening at a Hallowe'en party. The rooms were decorated in the Hallowe'en colors and weird games were enjoyed by Miss Gertrude Raucheson, Philadelphia; Gertrude Prael, Fallsington; Elizabeth DenBleyker, Bristol; Mrs. Russell Flail, Mrs. Howard Hilgendorff, Mrs. Clayton Buntiff, Edgely. Refreshments were served.

Emerald EmbassyFRANCIS GERARD*SYNOPSIS

While strolling along the countryside, Ambrose Pennyfeather, a respected citizen of Weyland, England, is shot to death by a man who spoke with a French accent. In the nearby residence of Lord George Lanchester, he and his brother, Yves Blaydes-Steele, discuss the murder of their friend, who "never had an enemy in the world." Then talk turns to the mission Yves is to perform for his brother the next day. In the year 1835, the then Earl of Lanchester deposed the tyrannical Dwan of the Island of Sulungu, and seated the latter's cousin, Prince Thalan, on the throne. For this, Queen Victoria honored Lanchester with the mission of presenting a precious emerald to the new sultan each year. The Dwan conferred upon Lord Lanchester the "Honour of the Emerald," and from that time on the Blaydes-Steele family became a link between the Imperial House of England and the ruling monarch of Sulungu.

CHAPTER THREE

Of recent years, travel being so much more simplified, it had become the habit of the Dwan of Sulungu to journey each year to England, bringing with him his emeralds which had now grown into what was, perhaps, the most famous necklace in the world.

Each year the sultan took the same house, Paddock Wood, in Sussex, and Lord Lanchester would go down, receive the necklace, take it to the Court jewelers who would add another emerald to its glowing length, after which it would be conveyed to Buckingham Palace for the investiture by the king himself.

The Sulungu Necklace, comprising now more than a hundred emeralds, was worth over half a million pounds and thus in value alone was unique. But it was more than merely an exceptionally valuable necklace for it had become a talisman and almost the link which bound Sulungu to Britain.

There was a prophecy to the effect that "he who wore the necklace wore also the diadem," and the Sulungu regarded the string of glorious green stones with a veneration which was almost religious.

There had been several instances of its attempted theft. One legend had it that a man broke into the palace treasure room at Sulungu and, having slain the guards who watched the gems night and day, died himself as his sacrilegious hand touched the treasure he had coveted.

Many newspaper readers knew that there was also an imitation necklace so perfect as to defy detection save by expert lapidaries.

Again, the Sulungu Necklace assumed international importance as a talisman for, with the growth of Japan's power and Imperial policy in the Far East, Sulungu had become of much strategic importance.

This island possessed an almost land-locked harbour, the mouth of which admitted only shallow draught ships—or submarines. As a submarine base, Sulungu was ready made and, with the discovery of oil in the foot-hills of its mountains, it had become almost as important as Singapore to the east or Aden to the west. From her harbour as a base, a fleet of British submarines could patrol the Indian Ocean and those seas in which lay the East Indies.

"What's he like, George?" asked Yves breaking the silence suddenly.

"Who?"

"The little Dwan cove."

"His Highness Buna Thalan, Dwan of Sulungu," corrected George rather pomously, "is an extremely pleasant little chap."

"Yes, I know that. But what's he like to look at?"

"Rather like a Javanese but he speaks excellent English. He was at Balliol." Then, after a pause, "By the way, Yves, don't expect a drink. He's a Mohomedan and very strict."

"Yes, teacher," said his brother, turning as the door opened. He rose to his feet and smiled amiably.

as his sister-in-law came into the room.

Angela Lanchester was a Californian by birth. Her wedding to the thirteenth earl was a real love-match. Angela was attractive, indeed. Her almost Spanish black hair contrasted amazingly with her ivory pallor and her full, generous mouth was kind and gentle. Her slow smile transfigured her face into something more than mere beauty but her greatest quality, perhaps, was her serenity.

In her simple, black dinner dress she looked cool and faintly aloof until, crossing to the bed, her face was filled with warmth as she looked down at her husband.

"How are you feeling, George, darling?" she asked, her voice low-pitched with the faintest hint of a drawl. "I'm all right, Angela. Did you want to see me about something?"

He frowned enquiry at her. "Bet-ter?" he echoed.

Angela nodded. "Norma!"

Angela nodded with an emphatic "Yes." Then she added, "What about John? You could talk to him tomorrow as he goes down with you to Paddock Wood."

"John, Meredith, eh? It's an idea, Angela, but . . . Oh, I don't know."

Somewhat one doesn't like to budge one's friends into . . . He has no official position, now that he's retired, you know."

"No. That's true enough but he still remains the most dynamic detective that's come out of the Yard for the last twenty years. You're picking him up on your way down, aren't you?"

"I am. But don't you go telephoning Juanita Meredith?" He drank the rest of his whisky and soda and then said, "George is worried about tomorrow, Angela, isn't he?"

"As a matter of fact, he is, though I've told him there's not the least cause for anxiety."

"That was nice of you, darling," said Blaydes-Steele and smiled very kindly at his sister-in-law. "Incidentally, I'm letting you in on a little secret. I've not even told George yet."

With that, he opened out his wallet and his sister-in-law could see the little badge of a Greyhound, the insignia of King's Messenger. "Yves, darling!" exclaimed the girl, rising to her feet and throwing her arms round his neck. "This is marvellous news! I must go tell George at once!"

Why The Voters Of Bristol Should Vote The Straight Republican Ticket

AT THE ELECTION TO BE HELD TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4TH

A citizen should be a voter.

In 1941, each citizen in Bristol has the chance to cast his ballot for the candidates he believes can and will do the job. The job is to manage the affairs of the Borough to the best interests of all the citizens.

The business of the Borough is successful. This year, and every year, the REPUBLICAN candidates for office can stand on the record of the REPUBLICAN administration. It proves they can do the job.

Bristol is meeting its problems of growth. And due to wise and efficient REPUBLICAN management of Borough affairs, it will continue to meet them, as far as can be foreseen.

Year after year the Burgess can report that the Borough has met its financial obligations. All bills are paid promptly on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The Borough of Bristol has had no bond issue since 1932.

The REPUBLICAN administration of the Borough is an efficient government. But it is also something that is even more important—in these times of climbing taxes and top-heavy public debts. It is an economical government. It saves the people's money.

In Bristol the taxes have been reduced four times in eight years. An 11-mill tax rate now covers all Borough expenses.

Economy in Borough expenditures has not been allowed to affect the public services provided to the people. The schools, the water system, the protective agencies—all of these are keeping ahead of the needs of the public.

All of the Borough public services maintain the highest standards of performance. Yet the Administration keeps the cost to the people at a minimum.

This year the voters have an unusual chance to express themselves on the kind of local government they want. This election is primarily a local election—and therefore is a very important one to the people in Bristol. It is an opportunity to support the local government that has done the things listed here.

World events and national policies do not enter into this election. There is no office listed on the ballot which has any effect on such sweeping subjects. But the whole ballot is concerned with the equally important topic of local government—the management of affairs right here where you live.

The REPUBLICAN ticket for the Borough of Bristol consists of eighteen candidates. Voting for these men means voting for the kind of government described here—the kind of government Bristol has. These men are campaigning on performance—the best platform any candidate can offer.

The voters have the chance to support the efficient and economical government they now have. Here are the men who will continue that kind of government:

CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON, for Burgess

ARTHUR P. BRADY, for Justice of the Peace

MARBURG D. WEAGLEY, for Auditor

LOUIS B. GIRTON, for Tax Collector

FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL:

Trenton, N. J., was travelling east; and it and another sedan operated by staff Sergeant Frederick J. Bollette, 25, of Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., travelling west, side-swiped. The soule machine then is said to have struck the bus, which was also travelling east. The bus was driven by Howard T. Bowyer, 28, of N. Hurley street, Philadelphia.

The injured included: Bollette, laceration of scalp and chin, and possible fracture of the pelvis; Mrs. Bollette, laceration of the face and forehead, and possible fracture of skull; Sgt. H. J. Davis, 23, possible fracture of the ribs; Mrs. Drusilla Thurman, wife of the driver, laceration of the head, Thurman was unhurt. Davis was riding in the Bollette car. A bus passenger, Samuel Pesey, Perry street, Trenton, N. J., suffered contusions of the head. All the injured were treated at St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J., some remaining there for a few days.

The Bollette car was demolished; the bus badly damaged; and the Thurman sedan also had considerable damage. Thurman was arrested by private Beckhart, of P. M. P., on a charge of assault and battery by automobile, awaiting outcome of injuries of the others.

Two young men were hurt in a one-car accident on Saturday afternoon, when on route 13, 1½ miles east of the Philadelphia city line, they struck a pole. It was stated to police that the driver fell asleep at the wheel. The car, a 10-year-old roadster, was being operated east by Minrod Schwenderman, 24, of Edgemont street, Philadelphia. The driver suffered abrasions of the right hand and elbows, he being treated at Harriman Hospital. His companion, Frank Schieber, 28, Cornwells Heights, had lacerations of the chin, and fractures of five ribs. He was taken also to Harriman Hospital, and removed last evening to Northeast Hospital, Philadelphia. The car was damaged to the amount of approximately $100. Private A. J. Lieberthal investigated. The Bucks County Rescue Squad removed the men from the scene of the accident.

Richard Clark, 65, of Eddington, was hurt as he was struck by a car as he walked along Bristol Pike, near Eddington, Friday evening. He was taken to Harriman Hospital by Bucks County Rescue Squad, being treated for a fracture of the left leg and fracture of the left arm. It is said that Clark was walking with traffic when hit by a machine operated by Walter Gottsabend. Clark remains in the hospital.

"A North Woods Cruise," by Henry Woodman. Moving pictures will be shown in full color, presenting a boat trip beginning at Niagara Falls, and taking the spectator, by canoe and portage, deep into the Canadian wilderness, with all the incidents of camp life, daily travel, fishing, and observation of wilderness creatures. The picture will be accompanied by Mr. Woodman's illuminating comment.

All persons interested in the out-of-doors and in natural science are cordially invited to be present at this meeting. Their interest and benefit is assured, and the Association is eager to extend its advantages to all.

Cookies For "Cold Pieces"

By the way, you had better make enough of these cookies so that your own family can enjoy them—for they are so tasty you'll not want to give them all away.

Soft Molasses Cookies

1 cup shortening
2/3 cup sugar
1 cup molasses
1/4 cup sour milk
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups flour

Cream the shortening and the sugar and add the molasses and milk. Mix well and add dry ingredients mixed and sifted together. Mix thoroughly. Roll the dough thin and cut in rounds. Chilling the dough before rolling makes it easier to handle. Bake in greased sheet in moderate hot oven (375 degrees F.).

Honey Hermits

1 1/3 cups strained honey
1/3 cup shortening
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped raisins
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
3 1/2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
Mix strained honey and melted shortening. Add eggs, milk, salt and raisins. Sift cinnamon, cloves, and baking powder with the flour. Beat well, and drop on a greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375-400 degrees F.) until brown.

Urge Relaxation and The Viewing of New Scenery

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3—Striking a new and timely note in its advertising for Nu-Blue Sunoco, Sun Oil Company is pointing out to millions of newspaper readers the advisability of gasoline in the world is like it. finding rest and relaxation in these days of war and worry.

"Under present conditions we all want to do our part towards national defense, even though we give up some of the luxuries and pleasant things of life, but this advertising goes on to point out that there is one luxury we can still enjoy—that of going places and doing things in our own cars instead of sitting at home and worrying about life in general."

"Just recently," remarked one of the Company's executives, "the U. S. Bureau of Mines tested over 2,000 gasolines and confirmed what all motorists know—namely, that today's gasolines are better than ever before. And this thought to motorists than among them is Nu-Blue Sunoco, through the leading newspapers of Made possible by a new process, no our territory!"

voting for the kind of government that has made Bucks County's tax rate of four mills one of the very lowest in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It is voting for the kind of government that has made the County's bonded indebtedness far lower than in any other county in the same class.

Coming closer to home, the Republican ticket for the Borough of Bristol lists eighteen candidates, headed by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson. Voting for these men means voting for the Borough Administration, which, led by Mr. Anderson, has reduced the tax rate four times in eight years. It is voting for the government here which pays its bills promptly as it goes along, in times of economic stress and in boom times alike. It is the government which has issued no bonds for the Borough since 1932, meanwhile assuming ever-increasing responsibilities for public service to the community.

Many of the candidates on the Borough ticket are men with years of experience in administering the very offices for which they are candidates. The others, the newcomers, are men of the best type. They are the kind of men needed in the Administration here if the services of the Borough are to continue working with their accustomed efficiency and economy. The local Republican candidates are:

Clifford L. Anderson, for Burgess
Arthur P. Brady, for Justice of the Peace
Marburg D. Weagley, for Auditor
Louis B. Girton, for Tax Collector

For Borough Council:—

William H. Fine
Dr. J. Fred Wagner—from the first ward
Louis C. Spring
William W. Warner—from the second ward
Harold G. Mitchener
Evan B. Vandegrift—from the third ward
Daniel Bonner
Thomas J. Burns—from the fifth ward
Charles G. Rathke
William H. Pearson—from the sixth ward

For School Directors:—

Robert C. Ruehl
Earl W. McEuen
Dr. George A. Hussey, Jr.
S. Bradley Ardrey

In this off-year election, then, the voters should forget for a day the horrors of Hitler and the mounting national debts and taxes. Those problems will be just as pressing on the morning of November 5—when this election is over.

But when this election is over, the voters will have had their chance to choose the local government they want and need. That is the sole purpose of the election tomorrow.

It is indeed an off-year election. So the voters of Bucks County and the Borough of Bristol should make the most of it. It is an opportunity to safeguard their welfare in local matters, without worrying about Washington or the world.

It is an opportunity which comes but seldom.

office, men and women who will fight the further insidious excursions of politically warped individuals whose principal interest is in the accession of greater and greater power to operate public affairs according to the whims and prejudices and ambitions of a little clique.

Bucks County Republicans should awaken to the responsibility they have to protect themselves and go to the polls next Tuesday.

By voting for Republican candidates they will be strengthening the opposition to the forces which are seeking to get not only complete control of Federal affairs, but those of the states, counties and municipalities.

Not the least important result it is hoped to achieve by the election of Republican candidates is the perpetuation of the policy of efficient and honest and economical administration of public affairs—free from the tactics of political boodle bands which are responsible for much of the alarmingly mounting debt of the country.

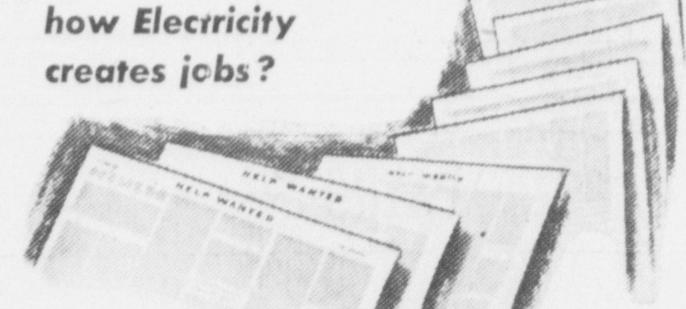

EFFICIENCY is the watchword of modern business. The modern office girl works efficiently, aided by the ingenious machines of business. Her fingers travel with lightning speed over intricate keys operated by electricity. She works tirelessly because the temperature in her office is maintained at the comfort-point by electricity. Shadowless, glareless electric light enables her to read her notes and rows of figures without effort and with fewer errors.

At home, as in the office, electricity helps to maintain her personal efficiency. A dozen electric servants wait upon her with steaming-hot dishes, ice-cold desserts, luxurious baths, crisp, clean clothes. No wonder she steps out for an evening's fun a refreshed and radiant companion.

To her—to everyone—electricity brings light and cheer and ease. To make it mean more in your life today than it did yesterday . . . to make it mean still more tomorrow . . . the men and women of Philadelphia Electric are devoting their efforts. They are fully conscious of their obligation to see that electricity flows uninterruptedly, abundantly and cheaply to the homes and industries of this area.

DO YOU KNOW how Electricity creates jobs?

Look into the home with its electrical appliances; into the plant, the store, the office with their electrical equipment. Look at our new standards of living, our new wants and needs—for which electricity is so largely responsible. Think of them all in terms of men and women at work . . . in terms of payrolls, of housewives buying more things, of men building new factories. Philadelphia Electric is proud of its contribution to more jobs and higher standards.

Look To The Oven For Dinner

TWO cannot live as cheaply as one, that's been amply proved. But two casseroles of food, or even more, can be baked as cheaply as one in an electric oven. It takes very little more electric current, you see, to maintain the desired temperature in a loaded oven, once it has been heated, than it does to bake or roast a single item. And therein lies the economy of oven meals as prepared in the electric range!

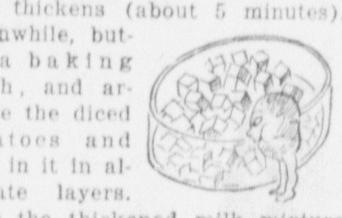

For one of those end-of-the-month or end-of-the-week occasions when the budget has been stretched to the breaking point, we've planned a dinner that's doubly thrifty, since both food cost and fuel cost are low. This dinner is doubly delicious, too, with its first course casserole of tender cubes of ham and potato and its dessert of small apple crumble puddings served with a garnish of molasses-flavored whipped cream. Cubed carrots or beets in a covered casserole are stowed away in the oven to bake with the main dish and dessert. And to complete the meal, hard rolls and a salad of mixed greens sprinkled with grated red cabbage might well be used.

This oven dinner is baked 1 hour at 375° F. To give the ham-potato casserole an attractive, flavorful brown crust it is a good idea to uncover the casserole at the end of 40 minutes. At the same time the small puddings may be removed from the oven. The interval timer on the electric range, if set when the food is placed in the oven, will remind you just when to adjust the cover and remove the dessert.

The recipe for the Ham Potato Scallop is excellent for making a little ham go a long way. The ham is cubed so that it will be distributed evenly throughout the casserole, thus providing a generous amount in each serving. It's a recipe to remember when you have the last of a baked ham or a picnic shoulder in the refrigerator.

Ham Potato Scallop
(Serves 5-6)

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
4 cups potatoes, cut in ½ inch cubes (4 large potatoes)
2 cups ham, cut in ½ inch cubes (¾ pound)

Place butter in saucepan on surface unit of electric range and melt over low heat; add flour and blend with a spoon. Add salt and milk, then switch to a medium heat and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens (about 5 minutes). Meanwhile, butter a baking dish, and arrange the diced potatoes and ham in it in alternate layers. Pour the thickened milk mixture over the potatoes and ham, then cover. Preheat oven to 375° F., and bake in casserole for 40 minutes. Remove cover, and continue baking for 20 minutes to brown top.

Apple Crumble
(Serves 6)

3 large apples, cut in ½ inch cubes
6 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup whipping cream
1 to 2 tablespoons molasses

Place cubed apples in six buttered custard cups and pour 1 tablespoon of the water over each. Cream butter, add sugar, flour, and cinnamon and blend until the mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle some of this mixture over each cup of apples. Preheat electric oven to 375° F., and bake apples for 40 minutes, or until they are tender and the crumbs are browned. Whip cream, add desired amount of molasses and use to garnish each individual pudding.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Gailey)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Our kind Heavenly Father, it would be presumption for us to thus address Thee were it not for the cross upon which the Prince of Life opened the way. In His dear Name we come confessing our sins, which are too numerous for us to mention; and too grievous for us to understand; and seeking Thy gracious forgiveness and Thy Spirit's power in our full restoration to Thy rich favor. Make us stronger, that as we live the days that are before us we may avoid the pitfalls of the past. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
